SYNOPSIS

Without any doubts, it is the lion who is the most majestic and frightening of animals. They roam the savannahs and rest in the shadows of the scrubs, observing watchfully. They are unequivocally more than simply big cats; these predators are so fascinating, because they radiate with calmness and power at the same time. Even at night they are perfectly able to discern their prey.

This book, richly illustrated, will take us to the every day life of a lion. We learn that they are both raucous predators and loyal members of their clan. Apart from the various facts, many of them unfamiliar even to adults, we get a lively impression of the king of animals.
