SYNOPSIS

A horse can be a girl's best friend. Meet here Glaedir, Frodo, Maxi and many more best mates! But it is not only riding horses which children love to learn more about, it is also caring for them. Working and living with these majestic animals reminds us humans how strong and impressive these animals are. So, have you never dreamt of having a horse for yourself, or just envied the lucky ones who spend their holidays on a farm with horses? Learn in this book how horses live together, how they act and how you can understand their behaviour.

This new series for young children, richly illustrated, will make you understand animals and their natural characteristics. We will learn how horses sleep, eat and move etc. However, this is not a "normal" fact book! It will rather emphasize the emotional aspect of the bonding between children and horses. It is indeed a book about best friends! At the same time, the text will be easy to understand for first readers. And there is a very special gift we are giving to our readers: the book will provide a double page with stickers – thus, readers can embroider their activity books, invitation cards, riding schedules...Last but not least, the book will feature a special section for legends and a space to insert your very personal story with your own best friend!

THE AUTHOR

Marlies Borchardt is a horse-fanatic: since she was a little girl she has been riding and living with horses. She is a freelance editor and lives with horses and dogs in Northern Germany.

THE PHOTOGRAPHER

Sabine Stuewer, born 1964, studied biology and is a well-known photographer of horses and other animals. Her pictures radiate with her love for these "best friends". Since 1989 she has been publishing her photos in many books and also in other media – not only in Germany but also on the international market.
